Foreword . . .

In presenting this catalog we wish to bring to the notice of our clients the fact that our stock has not been allowed to suffer during the years of depression and is now in the same excellent condition of health and vigor for which it is noted. Unless otherwise described, all the plants offered are strong, flowering-size specimens. In many instances we have larger and smaller plants at proportionate prices.

As we constantly receive inquiries for unflowered seedlings we have included offers of these in various sizes of popular varieties. It has not been possible to catalog all the many hundreds of thousands of seedling growing at the nursery but we will be glad to give particulars of any of these upon request. All the seedlings are bred from the choicest possible parentage, and are in splendid health and condition.

We continue to extend a cordial invitation to all those interested in Orchids to visit the nursery and we are at all times glad to be of any assistance possible to those in need of information regarding the requirements of the plants or any other matters dealing with Orchids.

SEEDLINGS IN FLASKS

A close-up view of two of the flasks showing Cattleya seedlings in development. The flasks contain sterilized nutrient jelly on which the seed, after also being sterilized, is sown. In due time the small seedlings appear and continue to grow for varying periods of from six months to two years, after which they are removed from the flasks and transplanted—20 to 30 in a small pot—and grown in the open greenhouse. The length of time required to bring the plant to flower from the seed averages from five to seven years for Cattleyas, which may seem a very long time to wait; but it is intensely interesting to watch the development of the tiny seedlings and look forward to seeing the results.
